STEVEN Broomhead's early departure from the North West Development Agency comes as no surprise.

What is more surprising is the coalition government's decision to axe the agency which has provided a huge economic boost to the region, including Warrington, during such tough economic times.

The decision is nothing short of outrageous following an earlier pledge to keep the agency going in some format.

The closure of the agency will leave a huge black hole in the local and regional economy - one which is going to be very difficult to fill on top of all the cuts being made by Warrington Borough Council.

While we are all well aware of the belt tightening required following years of over spending and borrowing, too many cuts too soon, will create a double dip recession.

Closure of the NWDA was a short sighted quick fix and one which will have a huge impact on our town.

I can fully understand why Steven felt he had no choice but to retire from his role at an organisation which is basically shutting up shop in time for March 2012.

I would like to take this opportunity of wishing Steven well in the future and I am sure he will continue to do his bit for Warrington in his role as Chairman at Warrington Wolves for many years to come.

Town on the rise?

WARRINGTON Town enjoyed their best ever start to the season going twelve games unbeaten, including a decent run in the money spinning FA Cup, just missing out on making the 4th qualifying round for only the second time in the club's 60 year history.

World premiere for town

A WORLD premiere will be performed at Warrington's Pyramid Arts Centre on Saturday November 6.

The North Cheshire Wind Orchestra will stage "Songs and Refrains" conducted by Catherine Tackley.

It will feature the world premiere of "Blame it on the Blues" written especially for two members of the orchestra, as well as the opportunity to hear McNeff's sparkling Clarinet Concerto, a previous orchestra commission.

The programme will include Michael Torke, Grand Central Station, Robert Orledge, Blame it on the Blues, Stephen McNeff, Clarinet Concerto, Oliver Waespi, Hebridean Rhapsody, Yo Goto, Fantasma Lunare, Daniel Basford - Songs and Refrains.

The concert starts at 8pm and there will be a pre-concert talk at 7.20pm. Further information is available by ringing the box office on 01925 422345 or via the website at www.pyramidparrhall.co.uk

Their unbeaten run included hosting the newly reformed former football league outfit Chester FC which attracted a bumper sell out 1,500 crowd - another first for Warrington Town.

To mark the club's achievements manager Joey Dunn won the Evo-Stik Division One North Manager of the Month award for September (pictured right) a first for Joey who praised a team effort for his success.

Another positive step forward has seen the club linking up with the highly successful Warrington Schoolboys set up through the club's principal sponsors Warrington Collegiate (pictured below).

With crowds also starting to show a healthy increase, a new Vice Presidents sponsors lounge and a new snack bar facility following improvement works on the ground,

Warrington are certainly aiming to be a club on the rise, with the main goal this season of making the end of season play offs.

For all the latest news and fixture updates visit www.warringtontownfc.co.uk

The club's next scheduled home league game is against Ciltheroe at Cantilever Park on Saturday, November 6 kick off 3pm.

Hello and welcome to my monthly column . . .

Hypnotes

by Michael Mahoney

Redundancy and cutbacks

Once upon a time, in a land much different than it is now, I worked for a company which no longer exists, becoming a casualty of the early 1980's recession. Back then, the technology we now take for granted did not exist, we had to make do with comptometers (unknown I suspect to those under 40 years old) to do calculations, computers were big bulky things filling a medium size room, ledgers and accounts were filed on paper, the very thought!

Yet I remember one aspect of that time vividly. Stress was prevalent, whether it was because the company was floundering, or that is how it was generally, I do not know, but at times you could cut the atmosphere with a knife. Directors seemed to totally lack any personality management skills, some of them lacked personality altogether.

I remember scowls and raised voices as the figures did not make good reading. As a youngish lad in those days I found it interesting why people reacted as they did. You may recall my tale mentioned in Hypnotes some years ago, of how one stressful event at that same company lead me to view life, in a totally different way.

The young Mahoney noticed that stress was contagious and it would build and tempers would fray, arguments were common place, especially as month end arrived and the accountants had to explain to the financial director why the figures achieved were not those projected.

In those days, or at least in the environment I worked in (though in fairness sheltered from many issues by protective, mindful colleagues) it was not uncommon for rude language to be slung about, levelled at those who had no impact on the statistics produced or the standing to answer back. Sometimes bullying was near scandalous, but in those days, that was the norm, whereas now something frowned upon, with some aspects now illegal in employment and common law.

I remember seeing grown adults cry due to stress. I worked in offices where some people smoked 40+ cigarettes a day, many people smoked as it was more acceptable then. I saw individuals still drunk from the night before after trying to drown their sorrows, dealing with stress in destructive ways. I knew then, that I didn't want to be in this environment.

Michael Mahoney is a Clinical Hypnotherapist. He has research, and patient trials experience. He is a member of the Hypnotherapy Association, an associate of the Primary Care Society for Gastroenterology, he is a non NHS service provider and Private Health Service Provider

And eventually I was made redundant, and grateful for it, although it was scary at the time.

Those days have helped to shape my life, I understand the effects of stressful environments, bullying and poor coping strategies. Little did I know then that I would go on to do occupational health, become a clinical hypnotherapist or develop self-help audio programs which help people around the world.

As our economy is destined for a much anticipated, and for some much feared government cutbacks and job losses, I am currently seeing many more people who are facing redundancy, through no fault of their own. Hand on heart, I know of no-one who has been made redundant and not gone on to better things. If you need help coping with redundancy, visit my site for information on my Laid Off, Move On audio program or if I can help with other areas, please contact me.

Major upgrades for 1,200 homes

MORE than 1,200 homes across Warrington are to receive major upgrades, including solar heating panels to cut energy bills, modern kitchens and contemporary wet-area style bathrooms.

The improvements will be carried out as part of a 15-year planned maintenance programme announced by Warrington Housing Association.

An annual budget of £650,000 has been allocated for the first five years.

Repairs will be carried out where necessary but the programme has more ambitious aims, altering the design and layout of properties to create better living spaces.

The solar heating panels use energy from the sun to heat a home's water supply and slash energy bills for the tenants.

Combining new lighting, contemporary wet-area style bathrooms and modern, spacious kitchens, the programme will ensure residents enjoy quality affordable housing.

John Orrell, the association's property services director, said: "We have confirmed an annual budget of £650,000 to carry out necessary repairs across our properties over the next five years.

"We aim to provide quality housing and as such undertake regular maintenance works offering improved designs and layouts for the benefit of our residents. We ensure all work is carried out in a professional, prompt manner with minimal disturbance to the tenants."

Repair work already carried out by the association has been praised by tenants, with 94 per cent saying they were "very satisfied" with the improvements.

The association operates exclusively in Warrington and has more than 1,200 high quality properties in the town.

It provides, manages and maintains housing for families, single people and retirement housing, as well as specialist accommodation designed for people with particular care and support needs.

Name change for boxing club

A WARRINGTON boxing club has changed its name after moving to a new state of the art gym.

The Phoenix Boxing Club has been renamed the Phoenix Fire ABC after moving to a gym funded by Cheshire Fire Brigade on Winwick Road.

The club recently held an awards night, and marked the help it has been given by Great Sankey Parish Council by launching The GSPC Shield (named after the council).

The shield goes to the Best Schoolboy aged 11 to 13. First winner was Grady James, of Whittle Hall, who previously attended boxing sessions at Whittle Hall Community Centre.

Town's second business conference

THE second Warrington Business Conference is due to take place at the newly refurbished Parr Hall on Wednesday November 3.

Building on the success of last year's event, speakers will include Peter Nears from Peel Holdings, Paul Hafren from Warrington Collegiate and Robert Davis from the Cheshire and Warrington Enterprise Commission.

During the afternoon delegates will take part in two workshops - one to discuss what support is needed now for the business community and the other to discuss what Warrington needs from its business community.

There will also be an opportunity to pose questions to the guest speakers.

Coun Ian Marks, leader of the borough council said: "We are extremely keen to meet with Warrington's diverse business community. In the new political climate, it is increasingly important for the private and public sector to work closer together to generate jobs and prospects."

Following the conference there will be an informal opportunity for networking.

The event is specifically aimed at those already based in the town or those who may be interested in moving to or operating out of Warrington.

The event is free but only two representatives from each organisation may attend to ensure a diverse mix of interests.

Unholy row over neglected cemetery

A POLITICAL war of words has broken out between two parish councils over improvement works at a neglected Warrington cemetery.

Great Sankey Lib Dem councillor Trudi Wood (right) has accused Penketh Parish Council of attempting to make political gain by claiming it got improvement works carried out at St Mary's Church cemetery.

She claims it was 'distasteful' to make political points scoring out of a sensitive issue.

But Penketh says the cemetery is in its parish and that Great Sankey Parish Council refused to help financially – even though people from its parish are buried there.

Labour Penketh Parish Coun Linda Dirir criticised Coun Wood for using the improvements to boost her own image in a leaflet used during the May elections – under the headline "Respect Restored to St Mary's Cemetery."

Meanwhile Coun Wood's complaints are directed at Penketh saying: "We have had a working party liaising closely with Warrington Council, the local church and organisations like the Royal British Legion and War Memorials Trust on various projects at St Mary's Cemetery since June 2009."

She said all work undertaken was instigated by the group which she led, and that Penketh declined to join in.

She refutes Penketh's claim that most of the work was done by Warrington's Look of the Borough Team. She said some work was done by them at her request, but the majority was done by Bereavement Services.

"If Penketh has planted wildflowers they may have placed them in areas cleared by us for other projects, wasting time and money invested. Common sense suggests it would have been appropriate to discuss any activities with the group already established," she said.

"It is distasteful that councillors from Penketh would take credit for work completed by others in such a sensitive public place. Possibly the 2011 elections motivate them?"

But Coun Dirir said the cemetery has been in a poor state for about five years, when it became full and was closed to new graves.

She said the borough council took over responsibility – but there were concerns that because of budget constraints it may be neglected. She said the project was too big to be done by volunteers.

She said Penketh agreed to put some money in to help, but Great Sankey refused. She said it fell into a "dreadful" state after effectively being left as the borough's responsibility.

Coun Dirir said that the Look of the Borough team agreed to work in Penketh, and local people were consulted. It was agreed the cemetery was a priority.

She suggested the future of the site's maintenance should involve four groups making financial contributions – the two parish councils, the borough and the church.

'Boy band' signs £1 million deal

A WARRINGTON teacher is part of a 'boy band' that has just signed a £1 million record deal.

Tenor Alan Hughes is part of one of the most original forms of boy band - a barbershop quartet. It has just signed to Sony Music's Arista records, the home of two of the best-selling boy bands ever, N-Sync and Backstreet Boys.

Alan is part of The Great British Barbershop Boys, who have a unique deal that will see them receive an extra £1 million pound "tip" when the album sells platinum.

The Great British Barbershop Boys said they started singing as a way of socialising and are "amazed" by the deal.

Their debut album "Christmas Time" will be released on December 6. It is a collection of classic Christmas songs rearranged to suit the unique barbershop sound.

The band members are all from the north and were spotted when they represented the UK at the International Barbershop Convention in Philadelphia, after being named British Quartet champions in 2008.

Other members are lead Zac Booles, baritone Joe Knight and bass Duncan Blackeby.

Alan said, "We are so excited to release our first album. The barbershop sound has survived around the world but underground for years. It will be superb to see it make a proper comeback in the charts."

Richard Connell, general manager Arista Records, said: "The barbershop quartet really is the origin of what we know today as the 'boy-band.' It's a wonderful tradition, rich in rules and regulations but above all hugely encouraging of creativity and collaboration."

"Communities literally come

together around their local quartet where lifelong bonds of friendship and loyalty are formed."

MP named as a man of influence

WARRINGTON South MP David Mowat has been named as one of the 'top ten new MPs' for science, technology, engineering and maths policy.

Influence

Science and technology consultancy Proof Communications drew up the list of 10 MPs as a guide for firms looking to influence the policy process.

Five were Conservatives, three Labour and two Liberal Democrats.

The firm looked at the background of each MP in relation to science and engineering and also the level of scientific research that went on in their constituency.

Mr Mowat said: "It's a personal bugbear of mine that this country produces too few engineering and science graduates.

"In the last quarter of a century, the number of engineering graduates we have produced has remained static, yet the number of people going to university has increased five-fold."

"The government has signalled that it wants to rebalance our economy away from financial services. If we are to do that, particularly in the North West, we need to focus on what we do well, like advanced manufacturing and nuclear power. But we can't do that unless we have the people with the necessary skills to fill the jobs of the future."

"I will do all that I can in Westminster to make this point to the Government."

Rain fails to dampen spirits

DESPITE torrential rain around 1,800 runners braved the elements to take part in the second New Balance English Half Marathon at Warrington.

But 700 people who registered for the event failed to turn up at the Victoria Park event which was won by James Connor from Kent Athletic Club in an impressive 1.07.48, just one second outside his personal best, which was excellent considering the appalling weather conditions.

Runner-up was fellow Kent Athletic Club runner and former Warringtonian John Gilbert who clocked 1.08.18, just two seconds outside his personal best.

First woman past the post was Jenny Guard from Leeds City Athletic Club in 1.23.42, just five seconds outside her personal best.

Event organiser Mike James was delighted with the turn out for the event, which passed without major incident as 1,800 runners took to the roads of south Warrington through Latchford, Grappenhall, Appleton Thorn and Stockton Heath.

The route was slightly different to last year's inaugural race to ensure runners' safety.

Various local charities were represented, with nearly 70 representing St Rocco's Hospice, while other local charities included the Tim Parry Johnathan Ball Foundation for Peace and the Wolves Foundation.

Volunteers from various local organisations helped out manning water stations, marshalling the route and handing out medals, while stewarding and security was provided by Warrington based Akme Security.

Plans are already in the pipeline for next year's event which will take place on Sunday September 18. A special Golden Ticket for Life is also being launched which means people can take part in the event "for life" for a one off payment of just £99 which can be booked online now.

Town set to miss out on superfast broadband

A LARGE part of the borough of Warrington looks set to miss out on superfast broadband connections being rolled out across the UK by telecoms giant BT.

The whole of the town centre, important business areas like Birchwood and outlying areas like Culcheth, Glazebury, Croft, Padgate and Woolston seem likely to be at the back of the queue when BT introduces fibre optic cables enabling 40mb broadband.

Only leafy areas like Lymm, Appleton, Stockton Heath and Grappenhall, south of the Manchester Ship Canal, and Penketh to the west of the town, have so far been earmarked to get the upgrade in about two years' time.

BT has launched a competition,

The Race to Infinity, to decide who gets the faster broadband first. The five telephone exchanges with the highest percentage of votes on December 31 will win the chance to be included in the roll-out - and BT will donate computer equipment worth £5,000 to a local community project.

But Warrington has shown little enthusiasm for the competition - even though the number of people voting more than doubled after Warrington-Worldwide's online edition published details last month.

The Culcheth and Padgate exchanges, with much smaller numbers of subscribers, also doubled their vote after we published details.

But towns in the south of England were racing ahead in the poll.

One businessman is urging local people to vote.

Paul Taylor, managing director of the Taylor Business Park at Culcheth, said: "We need the help of local people to put Culcheth and Warrington on the map for high speed broadband."

Many local people said they had never heard of the competition and others dismissed it as a gimmick.

To vote, internet users must go to www.racetoinfinity.bt.com and fill in their postcode and a number of other details.

They will then see how many votes their local exchange has received.

Soccer legend opens new school

VISITORS at the launch ceremony at the new Culcheth High School were given a pre-view of the school's Christmas show 'Grease' as former World Cup Winner Roger Hunt unveiled a commemorative plaque.

Drama students gave an enthusiastic performance of "Look at me I'm Sandra Dee" to get the ceremony under way.

A commemorative plaque was unveiled by the Mayor, Coun John Joyce, and local 1966 World Cup hero Roger Hunt - a former pupil, who played for Warrington Town, Liverpool and England.

Others at the ceremony included headteacher Martyn Froggett, Warrington North MP Helen Jones and Coun Sheila Woodyatt, the borough council's executive member for education.

Kath O'Dwyer, the council's director of children's services, told the gathering: "Building this school has been a huge team effort and unless you've been involved you won't know how huge."

"It has touched the lives of many people during the time from its inception to its successful completion. Looking at this fabulous community facility today it is easy to see how it will benefit not only current and future pupils but the whole community of Culcheth."

1,600 patients benefit from new clinics

MORE than 1,600 Warrington patients who take the blood thinning medication warfarin no longer need to go to hospital for treatment.

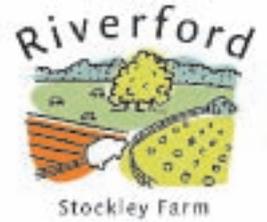

A highly successful pilot programme of community anti-coagulant clinics launched last year at Grappenhall and Westbrook, is being rolled out by NHS Warrington to other parts of the borough.

Patients who take long-term anti-coagulation drugs must be closely monitored, which means that their blood and medication must be checked regularly by a pharmacist and for many patients this meant weekly trips to the hospital clinic.

More clinics have opened at Birchwood, Penketh and Stockton Heath and a further two are planned at Guardian Street and Orford.

Sarah Baker, director of commissioning for NHS Warrington said: "We're extremely pleased with how successful the clinics have been. We intend to keep listening to what patients want and working with the hospital and GPs to ensure that more people in Warrington are able to receive the care they need closer to home."

Julie is an inspiration to us

by Jenny Osborne - Whittle Hall Consultant

I run a Slimming World group at Whittle Hall, Great Sankey on Mondays.

Julie was diagnosed with Ovarian cancer in Nov 09 and had a 5 1/2 lb tumour removed.

She started chemotherapy on xmas eve, her family were devastated. By new year

Julie was completely bald.

Chemo was gruelling and things went from bad to worse as in March she developed double pneumonia and pleurisy, it was at this point she thought she was going to die.

But Julie got through it and by mid April started to feel slightly human again.

Chemo finished, it worked and she got the all clear, the cancer was gone but she had gained a lot of weight with the steroids.

Julie decided to join Slimming World along with her daughter on 26th April as they wanted to do it together.

She felt very self conscious walking through that door with her bald head, but was welcomed with open arms!

She has not looked back since and in 20 weeks has managed to loose an amazing 3st and her daughter an incredible 4 stone!

Julie can now get upstairs without collapsing, walks for miles with her dogs and can even paint her own toenails!

She is an inspiration to the whole group and I'm sure many readers would love to hear about her story!

We held our group 'Woman of The Year' this week and Julie totally blew us all away and was crowned our morning groups winner!

If you would like any other information or would like to interview Julie herself please get in touch. I really do hope you agree that this story is worth shouting about!

We are really proud of her and would love her to get some local recognition for what she has achieved!

Dining Out with warrington-worldwide

at Villaggio

SOMETIMES wandering off the beaten track can lead to amazing discoveries.

It may be a bit of an exaggeration to describe Folly Lane, Warrington as "off the beaten track" but when dining out, most people probably head to the town centre or, even more likely, the more leafy suburbs.

In doing so, they are missing out on a little gem. The Villaggio Hotel and Restaurant.

Put simply, this is a quality restaurant offering an impressive range of dishes in spacious, tastefully furnished surroundings.

But it is a lot more than that as we discovered when we dropped in for dinner.

Helpful staff guided us through the intricacies of the huge, mainly Italian, menu and immediately made us feel at ease.

Delicious

We started our meal with soup - one minestrone and one vegetable - and both came steaming hot and delicious.

For our main courses we chose Petto di Pollo alla Grilla - marinated chargrilled chicken breast - and Costolette di Agnello - chargrilled lamb cutlets with roast - both with roast vegetables.

Both were beautifully cooked and presented and came in quantities that were generous but did not overload the plate.

Tempting

A wide choice of tempting desserts were on offer and the meal represented very good value for money. We noted that for those who wanted even better value a three course set meal was available for £9.95 seven days a week between 12 noon and 7pm.

Villaggio offers a good range of wines - mostly but not all Italian - and also a good choice of beers and lagers.

Importantly there is a good car park - so there isn't really any reason not to visit Folly Lane.

Yanks for the memories!

MORE than 60 years after bidding a fond farewell to the giant Burtonwood airbase at Warrington, Verne Keats took a nostalgic trip down memory lane where he was reunited with toys he made from scrap metal for local children!

Verne Keats, who served at RAF Burtonwood from 1944 to 1945 working in the Signal Maintenance Repair, was also re-united with one of the youngsters who received one of his toy jeeps which is now a family heirloom!

Verne came face to face with John Possthaite for the first time in 65 years during a special reunion at the Burtonwood airbase Museum based at Gulliver's World, Westbrook - which was once part of the giant RAF and US Army airbase.

Verne recalled how during his spare time he made some toys for the children of Warrington as gifts for Christmas, using pieces of scrap tin he found on the base to create US army trucks and jeeps.

At one Christmas Party a young John Possthaite was one of those lucky enough to receive one of Verne's toy jeeps - which he still treasures to this day after passing it on to his children and grand children!

Verne was able to take a trip down memory lane when he returned for a family wedding and was re-united with John and his toy jeep.

"Little did I know the toys I made more than 60 years ago would still be around today. They have aged better than me," said Verne.

Now examples of the toys and other memorabilia from yesteryear are on show at the Burtonwood Base Museum every Saturday and Sunday from 12.00noon to 4.00pm.

Burtonwood was the biggest US airbase in Europe during the Second World war, providing a base for thousands of American GI's and servicemen and attracted Hollywood legends including Cary Grant and Bob Hope, along with Glen Miller, to entertain the troops.

It is now part of the giant Omega development site.

Legal eagle flying high

WARRINGTON legal executive Emma Hicks is flying high after qualifying as one of only 11 legal executive advocates in the North West - and the only criminal advocate practising in Cheshire.

Emma, who attended Great Sankey High School and Priestley College, joined the Warrington law firm Forshaws Davies Ridgway (FDR) when she was 19.

Since then she has worked her way up from court clerk by successfully completing a series of extra courses and exams.

Now 34, she is able to fulfil many of the roles performed by a fully-qualified solicitor, including representing clients in adult and youth courts, conducting Crown Court bail applications and committal work for sentences and appeals.

Qualifying as a legal executive requires four years part-time study, followed by two years qualifying employment. Advocate status is then gained by preparing an extensive portfolio of work supplemented by an intensive six day course, including a mock trial.

Emma (pictured) enjoys the daily challenge of dealing with all types of criminal cases from murder, rape, drugs and fraud, to more minor theft and assault offences.

She said: "I decided I wanted to progress my career within the legal profession and take on work at a more demanding level. I am extremely grateful to the firm for encouraging and supporting me in this.

"The status of legal executives and the range of work they can do has increased dramatically in recent years. They are now even allowed to apply to be judges and partners in law firms, which would have been unheard of a few years ago.

Agency chief bids farewell

NORTH West Development Agency boss Steven Broomhead is set to retire as Chief Executive at the end of October 2010.

The decision was announced at the agency's AGM at Manchester's Whitworth Hall and has been taken following the coalition government's decision to disband the NWDA in March 2012.

Redundancies have already been implemented at the Warrington HQ, with more planned over the coming months.

Chairman Robert Hough said: "Steven has worked tirelessly for the agency and the region. He has made an enormous contribution to the Northwest since his appointment in 2003.

"He is well known and respected across both the private and public sector and has been a fantastic ambassador for both the Agency and the wider Northwest.

"His strong partnership skills have set the foundation for the transition and closure of the Agency and I fully respect and understand his decision to retire at this point."

Mr Broomhead joined the agency seven years ago from Warrington Borough Council, where he worked as Chief Executive for five years, prior to that he worked as principal of Warrington Collegiate.

Commenting on his departure he said: "My departure news should not distract from our messages today. This year's Annual Conference and AGM has highlighted our results achieved for the region in the past 12 months."

"The Agency has remained focused, adapting quickly and efficiently in order to help regional businesses survive and grow. Indeed, the National Audit Office rated the NWDA's response to recession with the highest grade possible, following an independent review.

"The Agency has responded quickly to ever changing economic climate, as well as acting quickly in the face of natural disasters. I am particularly proud of the Agency's £1 million support package in response to the Cumbrian floods, which could not have been provided by any other organisation. The Agency has built a powerful base for generating private investment in the region, including the Regional International Trade Programme, which has safeguarded 2,300 jobs in just 3 years and provided a return of over £22 for every £1 invested.

"I have enjoyed my time in this role immensely and it has been a privilege to work with so many committed partners and talented staff. The achievements of the Agency are there for all to see. However, I feel the time is now right for me to step down and get a better work/life balance after seven and a half years in a very busy and demanding role. The Agency has a strong executive team which will continue to ensure a smooth transition and closure, working closely with government and our many partners in the region."

He will retain his links with the town as Chairman of Warrington Wolves Rugby League Club.

Mr Broomhead says he has made no decisions about his future.

Meanwhile the agency is working with the UK Department for Business and Innovation and Skills (BIS) to agree future succession arrangements while future management arrangements are made to secure an orderly close down and transition of responsibilities.

Alexandria is ambassador

WARRINGTON'S Alexandria Bickerstaff-Kane is one of four IKEA employees who has flown out to Vietnam to witness first hand the great work funded by the store's Soft Toy campaign.

Since 2003, IKEA has donated €23.7million to Save the Children and UNICEF and Alexandria will be visiting the projects benefiting from this money.

Alexandria was chosen, along with three other co-workers, to become a Sustainability Ambassador, a role that will see her visit projects in Vietnam benefiting from the money raised by IKEA. On her return Alexandria's role will be to communicate the problems facing children, their families and communities in Vietnam and the difference that the money raised by IKEA is making. On their return the group will feedback to colleagues in the UK and Ireland their experiences, to motivate their peers and bring the Soft Toy campaign to life.

The application process asked employees in both the UK and Ireland why they thought they deserved to be a Sustainability Ambassador.

IKEA organised the trip to inspire Alexandria and her fellow co-workers to promote the Soft Toy campaign and the work the IKEA Social Initiative is funding around the world. All children have the right to an education, yet for certain minority groups, language or having to work can be a barrier to learning. UNICEF and Save the Children are working together to put this right and the group will visit projects that tackle these issues in the northern regions of Vietnam.

Alexandria said: "I studied Social Anthropology at university, so I learnt all about other cultures, globalisation and fair trade, I can't wait to see aspects of what I learnt in action on this trip. I feel over the moon to be selected to take part in such an exciting and forward thinking trip. I think I'll find it really insightful to see how the money raised by the campaign is spent and will enjoy sharing the experience with my fellow co-workers on my return."

For every soft toy an IKEA customer buys between October 25 and December 24, IKEA Social Initiative will donate €1 to UNICEF and Save the Children to support the education of the most disadvantaged children.

Since the start of the campaign the proceeds of which have helped improve the lives of more than eight million children in Asia, Africa and Central and Eastern Europe.

Golden Standard for Priestley students

SCIENCE and Maths students at Priestley College, Warrington, have been rewarded for their partnership work with Sellafield Limited by the British Science Association.

As part of the Engineering Education Scheme, two teams of students were tasked with solving a real life problem, devising a method of clearing pipework blocked with a toxic radioactive compound.

The students modelled the problem and built a rig to test their system. After completing a substantial written report and successfully making presentations to a panel of professional engineers, each student was handed a Crest Gold Award from the Association.

Crest, (Creativity in Science and Technology) is a work based scheme for students aged 11-19. It promotes work related learning and encourages students to develop skills for use in the real world. Having completed the Engineering Education Scheme the students became eligible for the highest Crest award.

Commenting on their success, Tutor Adrian Birchenough said, "Our students put in many extra hours working on the Engineering Education Scheme so their success in relation to the Crest Award is very much deserved."

He added, "The group were set a very complex task from Sellafield Limited but took it all in their stride and were able to impress a string of industry professionals with a truly professional presentation and well written report."

Wizards crowned champions!

Warrington Wizards23 18...Huddersfield Underbank Rangers

WARRINGTON Wizards were crowned 2010 Champions when they defeated Huddersfield Underbank Rangers 23-18 in an absorbing and high quality Co-operative Rugby League Conference National Grand Final at the Halliwell Jones Stadium.

It was the Wizards first trophy since their inception in 2005, although as Warrington Woolston Rovers they were inaugural winners of this competition in 2003.

In front of a very healthy crowd, the Wizards emerged victorious in a pulsating encounter that was in the balance until the very end; even after the hooter had sounded Rangers kicked the ball down field to try and snatch a last gasp win but the Wizards calmly snuffed out any chance of that and sparked off wild celebrations.

Huddersfield had taken an early lead through an Adam Carroll try that was converted by Neil Barrett, but the Wizards hit back when Player/ Coach Chris Campbell sprinted seventy metres from a quick tap restart and then tries followed by Alan Reddecliff and Jono Smith that were both goaled by Warren Ayres to give the Wizards a deserved 16-6 interval advantage.

Penalty

The first 20 minutes of the second half were scoreless as both sides cancelled each other out before the Wizards edged further ahead with an Ayres penalty, but then Underbank produced a gallant fightback with two tries in four minutes by Joe Worthington and Sam Housley, both converted by Barrett, to level the scores at 18-18 with ten minutes remaining.

The Wizards refused to panic and managed to regain the lead with five minutes left on the clock when Smith coolly slotted over a drop goal and then shortly afterwards a lovely high cross field kick on the last tackle by Matt Taylor saw Dave Yii collect and superbly slip the ball out to Graham Healey who squeezed over in the right corner.

The drama wasn't over as Huddersfield managed to win a scrum against the head in the final minute and then get awarded a penalty, but the Wizards managed to stay strong and get the win their efforts so richly deserved.

After the game Head Coach Chris

Picture Eddie Whitham

Campbell said: "This is absolutely fantastic. We have worked so hard all season for this and we have done it. The lads were magnificent out there but it is not just about the 17 on duty, it is a squad game and there were lads missing today who have played a vital part in getting us to this stage and this was for them as well as the backroom staff and management."

Success in Europe against all odds

JUST one year after being formed Warrington Wolves' boys academy handball team have won a European tournament without losing a single game!

Not only did they win the Ochtruo HC Invitation tournament, they did so against all odds on German soil, where handball is the second most popular sport, after soccer. The Warrington squad, made up of boys from across the town, found themselves competing against and beating players that had more than seven years handball experience.

The Warrington Wolves Academy Girls team were also in action at the same tournament and gave an excellent account of themselves winning 2 drawing 1 and losing 1, leaving them 3rd in the table.

Coach, Mick Hegarty, says the win marks a significant step forward for the teams, and for the sport of handball in Warrington. "Words can't describe how proud we are of the boys and girls. Every single one of them gave a great account of themselves," he said.

Financially yours

By David Watkinson

'Cash is king'

One very true saying is 'Cash is King', and there are many businesses which appear to be profitable but which run into problems because of shortage of cash, and many businesses may survive the current recession only to succumb to cashflow problems during the recovery period.

One very common cause of cash shortage within a business is called 'overtrading'. Most companies must spend cash on stock, wages and overheads before they can make a sale and receive some cash back. The more sales that are made then the greater the expenditure required beforehand, and if this cash requirement exceeds the company's resources then the company will not be able to meet its liabilities as they become due.

Even if a business is making a profit, poor business practices can put your cashflow at risk. Look out for:

Poor credit controls – you should always run credit checks on your customers, and ensure that your debt collection strategy is efficient. Make sure that your terms are clearly stated on all orders and invoices, and do show too much hesitancy in enforcing them.

Failure to fulfil your orders - if you don't deliver on time, or to specification, you won't get paid. Implement systems to measure production efficiency and the quantity and quality of stock you hold and produce, and raise separate invoices for separate products. Do not let your customers delay payment for one item if there is a problem with another.

Ineffective marketing - if your sales are stagnating or falling, revisit your marketing plan and ensure that you are getting a return on all of your expenditure. When you acquire a new customer then you should always ask where they got your details.

Inefficient ordering service - make it easy for your customers to do business with you. Where possible, accept orders over the telephone, email or internet. Ensure catalogues and order forms are clear and easy to use.

Poor management accounting - monitor key accounting ratios that will alert you to a possible future cashflow problem or that will prevent you from taking orders you can't handle.

Inadequate supplier management – Always monitor your suppliers. Ensure that they are not overcharging for goods or services, or taking too long to deliver. Poor control of gross profits or overhead costs - assess where you can cut costs. Consider outsourcing non-core activities such as payroll services. Review your utilities contracts to see whether it is possible to reduce costs by switching tariff or supplier.

WatkinsonBlack are pleased to advise on these matters, and operate a very cost-effective payroll bureau service. If you want to arrange a no-obligation initial meeting then please contact us.

Please note that these ideas are intended to inform rather than advise and you should always obtain professional advice before taking any action.
