I was honoured to be a guest at the Cheshire Police Northern Awards evening held in Warrington when veteran comedian Ken Dodd was on hand to present various commendations to deserving officers and members of the public.

Too often we read about those who commit terrible crimes in our community but little about those who help make our town a better place to live.

It was particularly rewarding to see honours being presented to members of the public who helped police tackle serious crimes.

One involved a 16-year-old girl who saved a friend from almost certainly becoming the victim of a rapist, by intervening and then later providing investigating officers with vital information which eventually led to the arrest of the sex attacker.

Following his arrest he was convicted of another rape.

Another incident involved a man and a woman who helped police apprehend two youngsters who would have almost certainly murdered their young victim had they not been caught.

Achievements

It is certainly refreshing to see the unsung heroes being recognised for their achievements, especially those civilians who helped police solve terrible crimes.

These public spirited citizens are a credit to the area and fully deserving of their commendations.

It was also pleasing to see the business community involved for the first time. sponsoring some of the key awards during the event at Winmarleigh House - well done to all those involved.

Finally a word about comedian Ken Dodd, who provided the light entertainment following the presentations - he is certainly still one of the great entertainers at 82-years young!

Lucie's back in town!

WARRINGTON singing sensation Lucie Evans is back on home turf after a hectic international schedule working towards a record deal.

It's been a busy few months for the 16-year-old from Birchwood, who won a £100,000 internet singing competition last April.

After sitting her GCSEs in June, Lucie jetted off to Los Angeles for a taste of the rock star lifestyle, recording three songs with guitarists who worked with Robbie Williams and Avril Lavigne. She was even interviewed by celebrity gossip columnist Perez Hilton.

She landed back in the UK in time to pick up nine grade A and two grade A* GCSEs then recorded another five tracks in London with Dsign Music, from Norway.

In September, she signed a contract with her management team Erika Lee and 1Click2Fame. Since then she's been concentrating on getting a backing band together ready to perform at record industry showcases over the coming months. Her proud dad, Rob Evans, said: "She's back and forth from London all the time. It's been a busy time for Lucie, recording and doing photo shoots and interviews."

"The next step is for Lucie to work on building up her fan base and performing with the band so that she can hopefully clinch that record deal. The latest news is that the backing band is now complete and they're spending all their time rehearsing together in Manchester."

But the youngster wasn't too busy to remember her school friends at Birchwood High. She performed at their

'Afroka' fundraising evening for its partnership school in South Africa.

Lucie has also been interviewed by MTV in London, performed at Lee Sharpe's charity foundation dinner at the Midland Hotel in Manchester and also performed at a Heroes awards dinner and at a firework display at Runcorn, in front of thousands.

Readers can follow Lucie's LA adventure by watching a video of her trip at myspace.com/lucieevans, where they can also download two of Lucie's songs for free and listen to three more.

Cemetery is 'shameful'

WARRINGTON Cemetery is in a 'shameful' state and disrespects the people buried in it, according to a senior councillor leading a working group to restore it.

Coun Mike Biggin says £85,000 each year is needed to improve it - with the aim of providing a peaceful and well maintained public space which could be reopened for burials.

There are currently 15,000 unsafe memorials in the cemetery with overgrown shrubbery, uneven or sinking kerbstones, untidy plots and headstones which have either been propped up or laid flat to prevent the risk of toppling.

The cemetery, on Manchester Road, was opened in 1857 and is the final resting place of more than 130,000 Warrington residents, including war heroes, celebrities and around 9000 in unmarked graves.

A working group was set up by the Environment and Housing Overview and Scrutiny Committee late last year to review its condition after public concern about its decline.

The group has spent the last year consulting with the public and piloting some initial renovation work.

The working group also hopes to establish a "Friends of Warrington Cemetery Group" which the public would be invited to join and to create a memorial to commemorate all unmarked deaths.

Hello and welcome to my monthly column . . .

Hypnotes

by Michael Mahoney

Achievement

I was listening to a few young friends talking recently about their goals and aspirations which included being a pop singer, becoming a star, becoming a super star, winning the X factor. Becoming famous in one guise or another seemed the general consensus.

I asked what they were doing to achieve their goals and aspirations, and suddenly they went quite, one or two even looked puzzled. I followed up my question further, what training are you doing to get to where you want to go? Worryingly the silence was deafening. I began to think I was using the wrong words, or I had slipped into speaking another language. Then it became clear. They had focussed so much on what they were going to do when they got to be super stars that they had not worked out what steps to take to get there! I pointed out that if they listened to some of the stories contestants on their favourite prime time TV show recited, many of them had worked long and hard to try to perfect their talents (I am glad to see there are many less stories of near death, illness and premature bereavement and loss on this years show), and that their success was a result of many years of hard work, which they would most likely have to do if they were to be successful.

I realised I had spoilt their discussion, and decided to make my excuses and leave.

But it got me thinking, many of us dream about achieving our goals, many of us though are less star struck and simply want to achieve the best we can for ourselves and our families. Many of us recognise that the word achievement is usually accompanied by the words; planning, determination, perseverance and hard work.

Every day of my working life I see people who have made the decision to achieve something. Whether it be self development, better relationships, work matters or something else. They have the determination, many have the perseverance and many know that hard work will be needed. But the fact they realise there are many steps to take before success is usually achieved is half of the battle, and makes the eventual achievement much more rewarding. My young friends have yet to recognise this, but I think my simple question may have started the thought process, and perhaps one day they will recognise I didn't derail their dreams, but stoked the fire of realisation and determination.

Talking about achievement, I am going to indulge myself for a few sentences. Many readers will know I have a history in working with the common digestive condition, irritable bowel syndrome or IBS as it is commonly known. A recent study from a well known university in the USA reported that IBS sufferers would be prepared to give 15 years off their remaining life span to be free of IBS! It also cited the importance of recognising the emotional aspects of IBS not just the physical. I got a sense of achievement reading this, because my IBS Audio Program 100 has been treating both the emotional and the physical symptoms of IBS since 1998, hence its success. Spotlight on Business

Three-year mentoring programme

A £4.9 million mentoring programme has been launched by the Warrington-based North West Development Agency (NWDA).

The three-year scheme will offer leaders and senior managers of small and micro-businesses the chance to access free mentoring, to guide and support them to grow their business.

The high quality service will be demand-led and delivered in accordance with a regional quality framework. Mentoring support will last between six and 12 months.

The programme is part of the Solutions for Business' portfolio.

At first, the programme will be delivered by a range of highly qualified and experienced mentors. Combined with a wider programme that will include group and e-mentoring and support, a total of 3,000 high quality mentoring relationships will be established across the region.

Steven Broomhead, NWDA chief executive said: "Mentoring is a key element of the agency's Leadership and Management Framework for Action. We understand that by helping businesses to invest in the development of their leaders and managers we can help create robust and competitive businesses that will ultimately contribute significantly to the economic success of England's North West."

Businesses wishing to access the mentoring programme should contact Business Link Northwest on 0845 00 66 888 or at www.businesslinknw.co.uk/mentoring

Scam warning

BUSINESSES in Warrington are being warned about fraudsters staging fake accidents to make illegal insurance claims.

Firms that employ part-timers or casual labour are most at risk, says Ged Smith, from insurance broker Jardine Lloyd Thompson.

"Criminal gangs have moved to employment fraud after a clampdown on motor fraud. They focus on dangerous places like building sites but all businesses that use temporary labour must be careful.

"Gangs have started taking on part-time or contracted work in order to fake an accident and make a claim."

Businesses are advised to have confidence in their Health and Safety systems, be vigilant when taking on new staff and keep in regular contact with their brokers.

Awards galore for the market

WARRINGTON Market manager Steve Pickering has picked up his third national award in a year for services to markets.

The National Association of British Market Authorities - the country's leading organisation for promoting the interests of markets - presented Mr Pickering with the "Outstanding Achievement Award for Contribution to the Market Industry" at its annual conference in Blackpool in recognition of his efforts to promote markets both locally and on a national scale.

The award was presented by the then president of NABMA, Gareth Jones.

Coun Bob Barr, Warrington Borough Council's executive member for planning, regeneration and housing, said: "This is the third accolade the market and its management have received this year, which is a fantastic achievement."

Meanwhile, all eight members of the customer service team at the market have gained NVQ qualifications in customer service.

The team completed the course together in record time and all are now more confident in carrying out their duties knowing the work they do on a daily basis is of a high standard.

Mr Pickering said: "I was not surprised when the staff completed the one year course months ahead of schedule as they have put so much time and effort into their studies."

Anne Worley, training liaison officer for the market team said: "The staff who have completed this course deserve recognition for their hard work and their excellent delivery of customer service. It was a pleasure to support them through their programme."

Holly in line for national award

A WARRINGTON kidney transplant patient, who spearheaded a high-profile campaign to boost organ donation, is in line to win a prestigious national award recognising the impact of her volunteering.

Holly Shaw, who will graduate in Early Childhood Studies from the University of Chester this November, will travel to London this month for the "Vnspired" National Awards, after winning a regional "Vnspired" Shout Award for her prolific campaigning.

Holly, (pictured) from Westbrook, underwent a kidney transplant in October last year, having spent more than three years undergoing regular dialysis while she waited for the phone call that changed her life.

During her time on the transplant waiting list, she set up the Gift of Life campaign to encourage people to sign the Organ Donor register, and from humble beginnings the initiative has sprung to national prominence.

During a national Donor Day earlier this year, Holly appeared on television and even received a personal message of support from Prime Minister Gordon Brown, as her endeavours prompted 3,200 people to sign up to be organ donors.

Since then, Holly's campaign has continued. She spent six months with a camera crew making a TV documentary and remains an advocate for the Live Life Then Give Life charity, which supports those waiting for transplants and provides post-transplant support.

The university is part of the Cheshire "Involved" team and is supported by funding from "V", the youth volunteering charity, which aims to inspire 500,000 young people aged 16 to 25 to get positively involved.

Holly said: "I'm very excited about going to the awards ceremony in London. I wasn't expecting to win the regional prize, so this is fantastic news. I started campaigning before my transplant and I'm not going to stop now, it has made a massive difference to my life.

"People take so many things for granted, like being able to eat and drink what they want and going for a day out. Thanks to the generosity of the donor and their family, my life has changed and I can now enjoy these things.

"Organ donation is something I feel passionately about and I'm thrilled to be able to spread the word. Fortunately my story has a happy ending, but that isn't always the case due to the shortage of organ donors in the UK.

"I was given the gift of life and I'll always be eternally grateful for that. I'm living life to the full and I'll never stop campaigning."

Claire Britton, the university's volunteer co-ordinator, added: "Holly has demonstrated courage and passion for this campaign, despite her own health issues and academic commitments. I'm so pleased Holly has won the Regional Shout Award, and will keep my fingers crossed she wins the National Award too!"

Next month, Holly will celebrate the year since her transplant by taking part in an abseil at Wirral's Leasowe Lighthouse to raise money for Live Life Then Give Life. To sponsor her, visit www.justgiving.com/LTGL-abseil

Diploma pupils go to college

SECONDARY school pupils from Warrington studying for one of the new diplomas in Society, Health and Development attended a workshop session at Priestley College.

The year 10 pupils are now studying at the college for two afternoons a week, as they complete the diploma alongside their traditional GCSE subjects at school. At the workshop the youngsters looked at job opportunities available in the health sector.

Year 10 school pupils from Warrington schools get to grips with a spot of plastering with the help of staff from Warrington Hospital.

They also practiced the kind of day-to-day tasks that are completed by an operational departmental practitioner within an NHS setting including the plastering of broken bones and how to carry out Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR).

Staff from Warrington Hospital oversaw all activities and answered questions. Tutor Lynn Dutton said: "The Diploma in Society, Health and Development, really is a new way of studying for students at this age. It is equivalent to five to seven GCSEs and takes up half of their core timetable, marking a shift away from traditional methods of studying.

"It was great to welcome in the practitioners from the NHS, the students had a good time and took away positive ideas about future career paths within the NHS and care sectors."

English half marathon

WARRINGTON'S first ever English Half Marathon was won by 22-year-old Julius Kimeu from Kenya in a race time of just 63 minutes as nearly 2,000 runners of all shapes and sizes took to the streets of the town.

Hot on his heels was runner up Tom Palin from the English International team, who defeated the Scottish International Teams. The first woman to finish was England team member Holly Rush in a time of 75 minutes.

Celebrity runners included five members of the Warrington Wolves rugby league team, running in aid of the Wolves' Foundation, with skipper Adrian Morley leading the way.

Various other Warrington charities were represented at the event including St Rocco's Hospice, the Tim Parry Johnathan Ball Foundation for Peace and Warrington Disability Partnership.

Event Director John Martindale hailed the event a "great success" and plans are already being made for next year's half marathon.

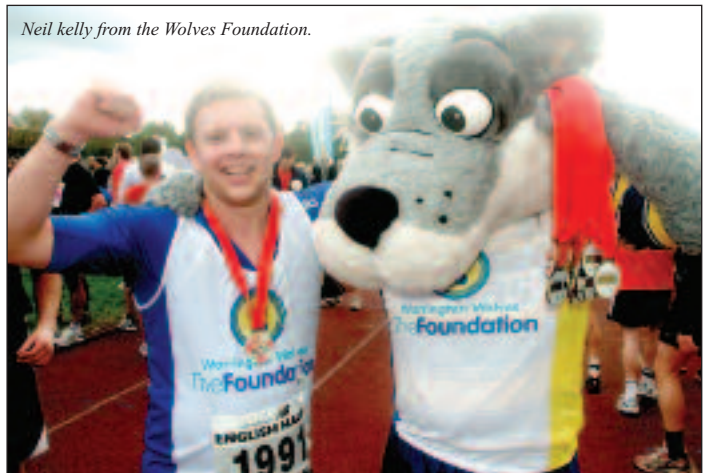

More than 2,300 runners registered for the event, with around 1,900 taking part.

"We aimed to get 2,000 registering so we exceeded our expectation and it is always normal to have quite a few no shows," said John.

He thanked main sponsors New Balance, Warrington Borough Council and the North West Development Agency for their "fantastic support."

Finishing in a Flash.

Neil Kelly from the Wolves Foundation.

Mark reveals Europe's Roswell

WARRINGTON based TV presenter Mark Olly has produced a special DVD on Europe's Roswell involving a UFO crash in Wales more than 25 years ago.

Best known for presenting the popular TV programme 'Lost Treasures' Mark recounts the story of when a small village near Aberystwyth was buzzed by a strange flying craft which hit trees, scattered shiny metal debris over four fields and flew off apparently unaffected.

Mark, who has written and produced the documentary will be doing a special signing session at midday on Saturday, November 28 at Warrington Market's Christmas Market, when he will also have on show a fragment of the UFO!

One farmer witnessed the debris and clean-up operation, one national newspaper carried the story, one civilian investigation team made it to the crash site and one collection of strange metallic debris remains.

Copies of the DVD can be obtained from the Information Centre in Warrington Market or over the Internet from the Reality Entertainment Web Site under 'Films'.

Special features of the DVD include the Director's Cut / DVD Trailer / Unedited Story Footage / Unedited Crash Team Interview / Tracks by Soul Path, Fastlane, and Freakhouse including an instrumental only available on this DVD.

Mark presents this first investigation in an occasional series of, what he claims to be, Internationally important hidden mysteries.

Behind the Golden Gates

WARRINGTON'S links with the slave trade, including trades in the town which benefited from the profits made on Trans-Atlantic slavery, have been revealed in a new film.

'Behind the Golden Gates' was researched, written, presented and filmed by pupils from six Warrington high schools.

It was premiered at the International Slavery Museum in Liverpool.

Last year the Warrington Humanities Network obtained a £17,000 grant from the Heritage Lottery Fund to research the town's links with slavery and fund the film project.

The high schools involved in the project were Birchwood, Bridgewater, Culcheth, Lymm, Lysander and St Gregory's.

Warrington Museum and the International Slavery Museum were also involved.

Pupils taking part in the project learned how to conduct historical research, how to deal with sensitive historical topics, how to plot, storyboard, script and present a film, as well as how to operate camera and sound equipment and to conduct studio editing.

The film touches upon the range of trades within the town which benefited from the profits of the slave trade, Warringtonians who directly invested in slave trading voyages, the wide range of buildings and infrastructure projects in Warrington paid for by those profiting from the trade, Warrington Academy's role in the abolitionist movement and how some people in Warrington continued to resist slavery up to the time of the American Civil War.

A DVD of 'Behind the Golden Gates' will be available free of charge to schools and community groups. Warrington Museum is in talks to hold an exhibition about the project and its findings, while the International Slavery Museum intend to distribute it as part of their teacher training resources and show it globally via their website.

Sports village clears two more hurdles

THE £30 million Orford Park Project has cleared two important hurdles, opening the way for an early start on building work.

Firstly, the Government Office for the North West has notified the borough council they will not be 'calling in' the 'sports village' scheme - which means there will not have to be a time-consuming public inquiry.

Additionally, the board of NHS Warrington has given stage one approval to their official commitment to their specific part of the project.

Lunch with an icon

WHEN talented Stylist Chloe Oakes, aged 18, from JAKATA salon won the 2009 L'Oreal Professional Young Colourist Award earlier this year, part of her winning prize was that she could have lunch with any hairdressing icon she wanted – the choice was entirely hers!

As a result Chloe, from the Bridge Street salon, had the once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to meet with her all-time favourite and world-renowned hairdresser Trevor Sorbie at the Bob Ricard restaurant in London's Soho.

Winner of the British Hairdressing Awards four times in his career and commemorated an M.B.E. in recognition for his services to hairdressing, Trevor was star struck as he shared stories and advice with her. "I've always admired Trevor and the work he has created over the years" she said. "To sit with him and chat about his career and my ambitions was amazing. As a pioneer in the 80's of cuts such as The Wedge and The Chop, all hairdressers look to him as a visionary in the industry – everything he said to me was very inspiring and I intend to make the most of it!"

At only 17 years of age, Chloe is the youngest ever hairdresser to win the L'Oreal Professional Colour Trophy 2009 Young Colourist Award and saw off stiff competition from over 1200 salons around the country with her stunning entry.

Adam Carter, JAKATA Style Director commented "Winning the Trophy means Chloe is getting exposure to completely new experiences - meeting with Trevor Sorbie in London to colouring hair live on L'Oreal stage shows in front of hundreds of people.

This is helping her to become an even better hairdresser and really demonstrates the outstanding calibre that JAKATA stylists have to offer in Warrington... our talented young hair trainees have someone to look up to and admire but they're going to have to work hard to beat her accomplishments to date!"

Stallholders raise £1,100 for charity

MARKET traders in Warrington raised more than £1,100 for the town's Alzheimer's Society when they held a charity auction.

Traders donated goods for the sale. A signed rugby ball from Warrington Wolves proved a big attraction and was auctioned for £81.

Visitors were entertained with music, a bird of prey display by local enthusiast John Taylor and an art exhibition by Trafford Art Group.

Market manager Stephen Pickering said: "On the day of the auction there was a great atmosphere at the market and I feel its success reinforced how much the market traders are part of the local community."

A similar charity auction is planned as part of the market's Christmas programme of activities.

Financially yours

By David Watkinson

Working from home

Are your offices big enough? If the answer is no then one alternative to renting expensive additional space is to allow your employees to work from home. As well as saving on premises costs there can be other significant advantages, including:

- Increased flexibility
- Less time lost through transport and weather issues
- Reduced sickness absence
- More motivated employees
- Improved staff retention
- An enlarged recruitment pool

For employees, advantages can include:

- A better work/life balance
- Reduced travel costs
- Increased flexibility

It is not for everyone, however, and some of the key matters to consider when looking at this option are:

- Is the staff member in question self disciplined?
- Do they work well unsupervised?
- Do they have space in the house where they can work undisturbed?
- How will the you ensure that tasks are equally divided between office based staff and home workers?
- How will you handle staff meetings and ensure that home workers feel that they are still part of the team?

If you decide to go down this route then you must issue revised contracts of employment covering such items of reporting procedures, breaks, hours of work, as well as responsibilities regarding equipment, insurance, etc. You must also look carefully at health & safety issues, including a site visit, as well as ensuring that there are no restrictions imposed by the Council or Mortgage lender. It is also vital to consider date security by ensuring, for instance, that data on data sticks is encrypted.

Finally, you should ensure that all legal requirements regarding the request for, consideration of, and agreement to flexible workings are adhered to. Unfortunately, we do not have space to look at these here but would be pleased to advise upon request.

WatkinsonBlack are pleased to advise on these matters. Please note that these ideas are intended to inform rather than advise and you should always obtain professional advice before taking any action.
