NOT for the first time, a question mark hangs over the future of the historic Cavaille-Coll organ in the Parr Hall.

This time, however, we fear that despite consultation with those who wish to retain the 138-year-old instrument, there is a determination among councillors to dispose of what, to them, seems an insurmountable obstacle to modernising the venue.

There are those who believe that because the organ – one of only two of its type in the world – is of interest to only a minority of people, it should not be allowed to stand in the way of progress.

But if that argument was applied across the board, the town – and indeed the world – would have lost so much of its irreplaceable heritage that it hardly bears contemplating.

True, when a recital is arranged for the organ, even one by a distinguished visiting musician, the audience is likely to be counted in dozens rather than hundreds.

But on the other hand, it features regularly in concerts by the Warrington Male Voice Choir, when tickets are like gold dust.

And on civic occasions, such as the Mayor's Ball, the organ, suitably illuminated, makes a magnificent backdrop, the loss of which would rob the Parr Hall of much of its atmosphere.

Little George is a big turn on

THOUSANDS of youngsters packed into Warrington Town Centre as Britain's Got Talent winner George Sampson 'came home' to switch on the town centre Christmas lights.

The Birchwood High School pupil who shot to fame after winning the talent show with his unique dance routine, was visibly shocked by the thousands of fans, mainly young girls, who flocked to see him perform his new dance and song routines.

Screams reached fever pitch as the 15-year-old took to the stage with girls waving banners proclaiming 'The next Mrs Sampson!'

George now spends little time in Warrington with his career blossoming in London where he has been performing in the West End.

Hello and welcome to my monthly column . . .

Hypnotes

by Michael Mahoney

Self development and self growth

For many years now I have had the pleasure of helping people to find their inner strength, helping to restore their self-confidence and self esteem, managing chronic pain, guiding in the relearning of how to pick up their lives after being victims of crime, comforting when coping with serious illness, developing coping mechanisms to deal with sustained anxiety, workplace and school place stress, bullying, workplace politics and much more, and it is a privilege to work with all these people. I also have the pleasure in helping woman to have easier births using relaxation methods, help people to get over driving test nerves and through examinations, help people to stop smoking, helping prepare for job interviews, or presentations, mentoring those who want to get into the caring profession, businessmen who want to hone their presentation or management skills, helping people to get through the dentist door, restoring sleep patterns, aiding people in building better relationships with their loved ones, to regain self respect and much more.

Self development and self growth are arguably more important now than they have been for the last 10 years at least. We are moving into times where emotional balance and harmony are vitally precious. We have to look after ourselves; it's not selfishness, its self preservation. There are many demands on each and every one of us, and it's up to us to get through them, and to do it we need to be in the best emotional place we can. We need to create balance and harmony within, to cope with these demanding times, one thing we can't do is expect to keep going and not expect to pay the emotional cost if we do not protect ourselves from these challenges.

This week I was talking to a client who said something really interesting about her journey and my services. She said that the phrase hypnotherapy did not do my services justice. Hypnotherapy has helped me immensely she said, however the talking we have done, and the way I had made it easy for her to learn about herself, presenting new ideas and concepts and options of choice, had been totally unexpected, but extremely valuable, and were also reinforced by the hypnotherapy. As Michael Mahoney is a Clinical Hypnotherapist. He has research, and patient trials experience.

He is a member of the Hypnotherapy Association, an associate of the Primary Care Society for Gastroenterology, he is a non NHS service provider and Private Health Service Provider

Tel: 01925-658322 email timelineservices@aol.com

she said, there is much more to it than people may think.

Some people still see hypnotherapy as 'a bit of alternative', others are well aware of its benefits and uses, though is should be noted too, that it has an impressive history, it has been proven, through medical research and patient trials to be a valid treatment option for many medical and non medical conditions, it can be used alongside mainstream treatment or as a standalone option. I am grateful for her kind words.

Now onto something happier, Christmas is rapidly approaching, a time to be with family and friends, to share precious times. Try to resist getting sucked into the rush of the festive season, remember the often stated phrase "what we don't have now, we will do without"! And it holds true. To those who have given feedback about by writings over the year, thank you for your comments. To all readers, I wish you all a peaceful and healthy Christmas.

Town centre is 'much calmer' says council

TOWN centre Warrington is 'much calmer' of a night – thanks to a 10-point plan drawn up by the borough council to tackle the problems caused by binge drinking and anti-social behaviour.

This is the claim of Coun Liz Smith, the council's executive member for Neighbourhoods and Communities.

The plan was launched in February to start a public debate on what needed to be done to address issues of alcohol, disorder and crime.

One of the first actions was to close Lower Bridge Street to all vehicles on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings. As a result fewer incidents have been reported and the overall atmosphere on the street is 'much calmer', says Coun Smith.

Since April, police have issued 165 notices requiring drunken offenders to leave the town centre for a period of 24 hours.

The council is now developing a 'Warrington at Night' strategy and will be looking at ways of recognising and rewarding those premises who do comply with the regulations.

Coun Smith added: "We are making real headway with other aspects of the plan. We know that there is still more to do to overcome some of the problems we have experienced, and to some extent continue to experience in Warrington at night, but we want to build on this initial success and learn from what is starting to work for us."

Art aids recovery

A FORMER architect who turned to art to help recover from mental ill health can now see the results of his efforts on display in Warrington Town Hall.

Thanks to the support of mental health charity Making Space Colin Pearson, 62, took up painting to relax and has now illustrated Warrington's famous town hall.

A print of his work was one of many exhibits at a special arts exhibition organised by the national mental health charity which has its HQ in Allen Street, Warrington.

Former Mayor Linda Dirr saw Colin's excellent work during a previous arts exhibition and asked him if he could do an illustration of the town hall.

Colin duly obliged and his masterpiece caught the eye of current Mayor Graham Welborn and his Mayoress wife Elaine when they officially opened the latest exhibition.

Colin says the support he has received from Making Space, including taking part in art classes at his local college, helped him on the road to recovery. He was working as a local government architect at the time of his breakdown and had to give up work.

Colin and the Mayor with his illustration of the Town Hall.

He has also spent 25 years in the police, rising to the rank of deputy commandant.

He never had time to paint while working but now finds it an excellent way to relax.

After viewing various items of work on show at the exhibition the Mayor congratulated Colin and other exhibitors on their extremely high standards.

He said: "Work like this deserves to be on show in public places and we are delighted to have Colin's work on show in the Town Hall."

Awakening

non laser tattoo removal

Don't let an unwanted or unsightly tattoo stop you from wearing the clothes you want or stand in the way of your career!

Are you fed up of wearing long sleeve shirts in the summer or covering up when everyone else is stripping off?

Or perhaps your tattoo serves as an all too permanent reminder of an uncomfortable or unwanted memory?

Why laser Removal Fails

Laser removal relies on using high energy pulses of light at specific wavelengths to smash the tattoo pigment so it may be absorbed by the body. The wavelengths must be varied according to skin colour, what colour pigments are to be removed, the type of ink used, and according to the depth of the tattoo. Green and yellow are also difficult pigments for the lasers to eliminate due to the fact that they reflect most of the light energy. As all pigments can be traced back to the three primary colours red, yellow and blue, it becomes clear that while initially effective, remaining pigment elements can be difficult, if not impossible for laser to totally eliminate.

Semi-Permanent Make-Up

Invest in your own Natural Beauty

With its advanced new techniques and procedures will enhance your natural beauty and give your features shape and definition without ever having to visit your make-up bag. The procedure is completely and effective and used for a variety of semi-permanent cosmetic enhancements- Eyeliner, Eyebrows, Lip Liners. Women of all ages are experiencing the difference micropigmentation can make. After just one procedure you can have stunning smudge free make-up that will last for several years.

Until recently getting an unwanted tattoo removed has been a daunting task, but now there is a revolutionary method of ink extraction developed in the USA to remove that tattoo quickly, easily and permanently.

The Rejuvi system works much like having the original tattoo, but instead of ink uses a specially formulated cream that bonds with the original tattoo ink and draws it to the skin surface. The cream doesn't remain in the skin, or replace the tattoo and the treatment is so effective that a tattoo can usually be completely removed in just three or four sessions, compared to the dozens of treatments required by laser removal methods.

Spotlight on Business

Mr Burnham with Helen Southworth, Alan Yates, (far right) Head Teacher at Great Sankey High School, and Damian O'Connor, the RAC's Head of Technical Services Delivery

New Automotive Training Centre opened

A STATE-of-the-art Automotive Training Centre has been opened at Great Sankey High School by Andy Burnham, Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport and Helen Southworth, MP for Warrington South.

Delegates from the main partner organisations, including the RAC, the Northwest Regional Development Agency (NWDA), Warrington Collegiate and Warrington Borough Council, attended a ceremony to mark the opening of the centre, which aims to address skills shortages in the region.

The aim of the centre is to give pupils a head start in the automotive industry through vocational training. It will provide students with the opportunity to gain an Institute of Motor Industry recognised Technical Certificate, which enables them to work towards an Engineering Diploma if they continue with training until the age of 19.

The NWDA provided funding support of £250,000 for the centre as part of the Agency's commitment to help develop intermediate and higher skills of the region's workforce and create linkages with local and regional employers.

Steven Broomhead, Chief Executive of the NWDA, said: "The Northwest is home to over 450 automotive companies, of which 200 are major automotive supply chain companies, with a combined annual turnover of £9 billion. As one of the Northwest's priority sectors, it is vital that the region's automotive industry is equipped with the highly skilled employees that it needs for continued growth."

'Marriages should be renewed like dog licenses'

by Paul Ireland

A FAMOUS ex-Fawlty Towers actor has been making the Headlines in recent weeks. If you are thinking I mean Andrew Sachs following the now infamous 'Manuel Gate' saga you would be wrong. I am in fact talking about John Cleese.

As a Family Solicitor I was most interested by the ex Fawlty-Towers and Monty Python actor's comments about marriage and children when he suggested 'marriages should be renewed like dog licenses'. He went further to say, 'I think you should have to renew marriage licenses every five years unless you have children and I think before you have children you should have to go and pass various tests and get a license to have a child'.

Given that the actor is on his third divorce he is hardly speaking from a position of strength with his views on marriage. However, his comments also came in the week where new figures were published suggesting that something in the region of 40% of marriages end in divorce. I have to be honest this figure astonished me and in my experience that is not an accurate reflection of the true position. However, sadly it is a fact that the number of relationships breaking down or marriages ending in divorce is increasing.

Regrettably, whilst there are exceptions to every rule it would be fair to say that the phrase 'amicable divorce/separation' is a paradox but that does not in my view mean that unlike Mr Cleese and his soon to be ex wife or Paul and Heather

McCartney before them that divorce has to be acrimonious or expensive. I am always at pains to emphasise to those that I represent that they should always retain a degree of focus and where possible try and be sensible and civil about matters. It is always important to remember that the financial issues of a divorce do need to be resolved and however the money is shared and in whatever proportions it is much better off in the parties pocket than in the court's.

The reality is that divorce is often a stressful and emotional experience for those individuals who are going through it.

I would strongly recommend that if you are ever experiencing difficulties in connection with any personal family issues that it is important that advice is obtained from a solicitor who is an expert and more importantly can detach themselves from the emotion of the situation and provide an independent and emotionless overview and guide you along the right path.

This article is meant to assist or be informative rather than advise.

On the right lines

A WARRINGTON business consultant has become the first woman in the country to achieve a prestigious degree in railway management. Tricia Meade (pictured) combined her work as business consultant at NTTX Ltd, near Congleton, with her studies for a BSc in Railway Operational Management at Glasgow Caledonian University. The 47-year-old from Applecross Close, Gorse Covert, was the only woman out of 23 students.

Penny into £s!

WARRINGTON Wolves' star Kevin Penny was on hand to help raise around £300 for St Rocco's Hospice as part of a 'Bring a Pound to Work' charity event.

People working at the Genesis Centre, Birchwood, who have just signed up to sponsor Kevin for a second season, were encouraged to bring a pound into work to help raise funds for St Rocco's.

In return for a donation they went into a draw to win a signed Warrington Wolves' ball.

Centre Manager Tracy Vickers said: "We have a great relationship with everyone working on the site and it is good to get them all to pull together for charity."

"This is the second year we have sponsored Kevin and it is great to have him involved."

The Genesis Centre is a business Park at Birchwood providing office accommodation.

Walton winter wonderland

WARRINGTON'S Walton Hall and Gardens is set to turn back the clock with the annual Victorian style Christmas events.

Around the time Queen Victoria came to the throne in 1837, Walton Hall and its beautiful Gardens were built by the Brewing Family, the Greenalls.

In 1941 the family sold Walton Hall Gardens to Warrington Council. Today the Hall is available for party bookings whilst in the Gardens people can stroll around the beautiful formal gardens, play crazy golf or bowls, visit the children's Zoo, discover more about the history of the Hall in the Heritage Centre, join nature walks with the rangers and much more.

On December 6, 7, 13, 14, 20 and 21, the old cobbled stableyard is transformed in an attempt to recapture the magic of a traditional Victorian style Christmas. A festive fayre with children's entertainers and live music, carousel rides, Yule log making, Face painting, Nativity scene and Santa in his Grotto.

This year it has been extended, with demonstrations by a Chainsaw sculptor and on Sundays only, a Festive Food and Craft Fair. Also on Sundays a traditional carvery will be available in the Hall itself, but please ring to book early and avoid disappointment.

The future's bright - the future's Yellow!

A NEW board of Directors have officially taken control of Warrington Town Football Club after more than 18 months hard work transferring the Unibond Division North club from a private members club to a limited company.

Warrington based manager Paul Moore has already put together a settled team including at least half a dozen Warrington based first team squad players.

"When I arrived at the club many of the players were not even up to the Mid Cheshire League standard," he said. "We have now concentrated on signing players who have played at a higher standard and we are also keen to get local lads playing for the club."

"I have received great backing from the board and I am confident the club is moving forward in the right direction."

While still looking for consistency on the pitch in the league the club has enjoyed some cup success, particularly in the money-spinning FA Trophy with a famous away victory at Unibond Premier League outfit Matlock Town - former winners of the famous trophy which culminates with a showpiece final at Wembley.

New sponsors have been brought on board including principal shirt sponsors Johnstone's Paints, Business Link North West, Government backed job creation agency intraining, Warrington Collegiate and Select Leisure and most recently the Environment Agency.

Nicknamed 'The Yellows,' or 'The Wire' the club's most famous son is world cup winner Roger Hunt who still lives in the town and was a goal scoring legend with Liverpool in the 1960's.

The new board of directors is made up of : Dave Hughes (Footballing Chairman) Gary Skentelbery (Chief Executive/Director) Derek Brownbill (Director of Football) Richy Sutton (Director) Kevin Read (Director) Jeff Greenwood (Director) David Mowat (Director) Ken Lacey (Director) Bill Carr (Director) Martin Simcock (Director).

Regular match reports and photographs are updated on the www.warrington-worldwide.co.uk website where the most up to date fixture list can also be seen.

Pictures show Warrington based striker Phil Hadland and Kevin Towey celebrating the famous cup victory at Matlock (top right) and another Warrington based player Scott Williams taking on Clitheroe in the recent 1-0 home league victory (below).

Limited or not?

ONE decision that must be made by all new businesses, and one which should be reviewed regularly, is whether the business activity should be carried out within a limited company or not. A company provides at least some security against the loss of personal assets, and this will appear even more attractive when viewed against the rapidly rising number of bankruptcies and liquidations currently occurring. However, being a director of a limited company carries its own risks and obligations.

The Companies Act 2006 laid down seven statutory duties on directors, and all seven are now in force. These are:

- A director must act within the powers of the office, and these powers are contained within the Articles of Association of the company.
  - He must act in such a manner as to promote the success of the company
  - He must exercise independent judgement in performing his duty
  - He must also exercise reasonable care, skill and diligence in performing those duties.
- The above four duties have been in force for some time, and since October 2008 the following three duties have been added:
- A director must avoid conflicts of interest

- He must not accept benefits from third parties, and finally
- He must declare any personal interests in all proposed transactions and arrangements.

The government have published guidelines on how directors should protect themselves against any claims by the shareholders that they have acted negligently or in breach of these rules. These include:

- The director should always remember that company's property belongs to the company and not to the directors or shareholders
- The director should use any specialist skills or experience that he possesses
- He must always act in the company's best interest, considering all matters including the welfare of the company's shareholders, employees and creditors.
- He must act within the company's constitution, and comply with any decisions that are taken under it
- He should ensure that a record is kept of all decisions
- He must remember that the responsibility for work delegated to others remains with him

David Watkinson and Margaret Black

- Finally, he should avoid situations where there may be a conflict between his own interests and those of the company or, at the very least, make very early disclosure of those conflicts
