IT is great to see that Warrington has received £100,000 funding in a bid to breathe new life in to the empty shops in the town centre (see page 7).

With the council also seeking a share of £1m government funding to help towards the regeneration of the town centre and all the planned activities as part of the "It's all going on in Warrington" campaign, there does appear to be some light at the end of the tunnel.

The proposed re-development of the Time Square and the town's market is also likely to bring a much-needed boost to a town centre that is currently being transformed into a ghost town during the day.

The number of empty shops along Bridge Street is truly alarming and in the current economic climate one fears for the very future of our once vibrant town centre.

Warrington is by no means unique to this growing national problem and is hugely important that everyone pulls together and shows a united front to help regenerate our town.

So as we prepare to enter the party political 'silly season' on the local council can I appeal to all our politicians to concentrate on working together for the good of our town - instead of attempting to score cheap political points against each other within your own groups or against your opponents.

For those existing and aspiring politicians out there who get the honour of sitting on our council, just remember why you are there - to represent the people and our great town - not to take part in political mud slinging - work for the people - or they will vote against you!

Alex achieves a world's first in ballet

WARRINGTON schoolboy Alex Caggegi is set to become the first ever mainstream education British boy to train with the world famous Bolshoi Ballet Academy in Moscow, Russia.

Alex, aged 16, currently in his last year at St Gregory's Catholic High School and Warrington's very own "Billy Elliot", is only the fourth ever British boy to be accepted at the prestigious ballet school in its 239 year history, the other three all coming from vocational dance schools.

He now needs to find £15,000 a year to help fund his time at the Bolshoi and also learn to speak Russian!

"I sent a DVD off to the academy showing class work and a classical and contemporary solo and was shocked when they emailed me back saying I had been offered a full three year course."

Alex, who has been a member of the Kate Simmons Dance School for eleven years has progressed through the grades and is now working towards an Advanced 2 Cecchetti Ballet exam. As well as ballet he also does tap and jazz and plays in a brass band.

"I am really going to miss my family and friends but this is a fantastic opportunity," said Alex, who hopes the experience will help ensure him a career with a top company.

While he would love the opportunity of appearing with the Bolshoi Ballet Theatre, he realises there is little chance, as Russian students generally fill all the available spaces.

He has already gained experience performing around the country in various shows and has won various awards, most recently the Ateneo Danza Summer School Scholarship in the Cecchetti International Classical Ballet Competition in July, an event which attracts dancers from all over the world.

His inspiration is Mikhail Baryshnikov, a dancer with the Kirov Ballet, American Ballet Theatre and New York City Ballet.

Alex has already had a taste of Russia while on holiday in the country to watch the Bolshoi Ballet Theatre in action. He will start his training on September 1 for the next three years.

"The training will be rigorous. I will not only dance ballet but also contemporary, pas de deux, historical dance and have a one and a half hour Russian lesson every day!

"I will definitely miss my dancing school, it has given me so many great memories over the years and the quality of the training is phenomenal, but I am so excited to begin my time in Russia."

Now Alex and his family are busy fund-raising by organising a variety of events. He is also looking for sponsors and donations which can be made at the website www.gofundme.com/iy2ug

Hello and welcome to my monthly column . . .

Hypnotes

by Michael Mahoney

Focus on what you want, not what you don't want!

Do you ever wonder why it sometimes seems that when you are running late, that is all you can think of? And then you are late! Overweight people tend to only see their flaws, frustrated young athletes might only concentrate on their low scores, and people in debt only see their bills.

If you were to stand facing the light, your shadow would be behind you! Sometimes we need to face the light and know that shadows – those darker times – can be behind us. By that I mean, many times it can be very helpful to put your focus on your desired outcome, rather than what you do not want to happen in your life.

When you concentrate on what you do not want, you are telling your subconscious mind that this is your intention of what you want more of.

A common technique I use is to provide imagery and suggestions that help individuals focus on their desired outcome. For those trying to reduce, I suggest they keep an image in their mind of how they wish to look, to imagine how they will feel with their desired weight level as if it is happening now and to imagine all aspects – what they would wear, to even look in the mirror and visualize their perfect image.

An individual facing debt will tend to see only bills and debts mounting. A helpful technique here is to concentrate on how it would feel to have enough money to pay bills, to see themselves as having that ability. This in turn, can assist the individual in real life to take actions toward that goal with a renewed focus.

This can be done for any goal – from a concentrated focus on playing the perfect game, to getting the perfect job, or any outcome of any situation. Granted, there are times when this may not always be realistic, but even in these instances, an optimistic mind set of seeing better outcomes and having a positive focus can at least assist the individual to either obtain a better goal or coping skills, than just with focus on the problem.

Research has shown that athletes have improved their skills by repeatedly visualizing what they want to achieve. There are areas in the brain that fire in the same way when an individual is just picturing and imagining making goals as when they are actually performing the activity.

A repeated concentration on the desired result is a learned response. Human nature seems to want to focus on the problem; we talk about them to everyone and commiserate. But by shifting the focus repeatedly on the desired outcome, I have found that this can be a very valuable tool in reaching attainable goals. Need help in obtaining your goals? I can help.

Unsung heroes honoured

EIGHT 'community ambassadors' - unsung heroes who have made an outstanding contribution to local community life - were honoured at a civic celebration hosted by the Mayor of Warrington at Walton Hall.

The Mayor, Cllr Mike Biggin told guests: "The Community Ambassador Awards" recognise that our town wouldn't function without our huge army of volunteers who use their skills and expertise to serve their local area.

"The people in our communities who give their time and efforts so selflessly are why Warrington works."

Back: William Smith, Rev Paul Hockley, David Parr; middle: Helen Curwen, the Mayor, Stephen Murphy; front: Ellen Wheatley and Jean Unsworth.

There was also a raffle which raised funds for the Mayor's three chosen charities - The Fire Fighters Charity, St Joseph's Family Centre and Claire House Hospice.

The eight award winners were:

William Smith - nominated for his voluntary work with Cheshire Fire and Rescue Post Fire Support Team which provides invaluable support to victims of traumatic incidents such as fire or flood.

Helen Curwen and Jean Unsworth - nominated for their contribution to the Purple Flag steering group at Stockton Heath.

David Parr - who leads a group of volunteers who clear up litter in the Whittle Hall and Westbrook areas.

Susan Blyth - who works tirelessly to help the most vulnerable in the community through her work at the town's YMCA and their Room at the Inn shelter which helps people who are homeless.

Su Williams - who volunteers at Lymm Youth Club, runs Art in the Garden as part of Lymm Festival and is a long standing environmental campaigner and a member of the Low Carbon Lymm group.

Ellen Wheatley - who with husband Bill, has run Mid Orford Residents Association for the past 10 years, encouraging local people to get out and enjoy the activities on offer in the area and running a successful Monday night social club. Sadly Bill died last year, but Ellen continues the work.

Stephen Murphy - a community engagement officer for the borough council for a number of years, whose achievements include saving a local boxing club, helping young people get involved in projects to keep them off the streets and organising fundraising concerts, including one for Help the Heroes.

Rev Paul Hockley - vicar of St Paul's Church, who leads the Churches Together Campaign which aims to fund a new church in Penketh.

Borough's 15-year planning blueprint

WARRINGTON's planning blueprint for the next 15 years has been approved by the borough council and has been submitted to the government for independent examination.

It sets out a framework to shape the way the borough will develop up to the year 2027 and is described as "the bar against which all future planning applications will be assessed."

Andy Farrall (pictured right), the borough council's executive director of environment and regeneration said: "The new development plan will be one of the borough's most important strategies in ensuring that on-the-ground activity makes Warrington one of the best places to live and work in the UK."

The council's decision to progress the plan came just ahead of the publication of the government's National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF), which attempts to make the planning system clearer, simpler and easier to put into practice.

It also means that all councils now only have 12 months to ensure their local plans are in place.

Mr Farrall said: "Our local development plan is on schedule to meet the new national deadlines which will ensure that we are ahead of the game and can continue to lead the local development agenda."

Residents, businesses and other stakeholders will have a chance to give feedback on the plan before it is independently examined in the autumn.

A copy of the draft plan can be found on the borough council website, www.warrington.gov.uk

Sharples Group bucking the trend

THE tough economy has sparked a fifteen per cent growth in sales for Warrington-based Sharples Group with hard-pressed North West business owners calling on them for help in saving money on the cost of their printer consumables.

Save

Soaring demand for their expert audits of in-house printer and copier systems, which can save users up to 50 per cent on running costs, has been keeping the 30 employee team busy, said Sales Director David Griffiths.

"As the financial climate has worsened we've been getting steadily busier," added David.

"Business owners are trying to make economies and one of the first areas they should look at is their document output strategy which can represent three and a half per cent of a company's sales revenue.

"That's why we created our Quick View service which entails a visit by our expert staff who conduct a detailed review of a business's document production and associated costs. Armed with that information we can advise a business owner on steps they can take to make significant savings.

"Savings of 50 per cent are achievable although a 20 per cent reduction in costs is the average across the board. As a result our Quick View activity has been solely responsible for increasing our company turnover from £2.5 million to £2.7 million this year and there is no sign of it slowing down."

Who is King!

Quite often we all are guilty of neglecting the bigger picture, taking our eye off the most important ball – our business – and its growth.

Day to day running is what always seems to come first. But surely first should come development and innovation?

After all, if your business just ticks over and doesn't "keep up with the times" in today's market you can run the risk of losing valuable customers who are hungry for new and innovative services and products.

In any company, good customer

£100,000 to boost town centre

WARRINGTON has been awarded £100,000 to help tackle the issue of empty shops in the town centre.

The money, unveiled by local government minister Grant Shapps today, comes from a new £10 million "High Street Innovation Fund."

It is designed to support new business start-ups, while bringing empty properties into use through community or alternative uses.

It is part of the government's response to retail guru Mary Portas's report on reinvigorating the British high street.

Andy Farrall, executive director of environment and regeneration at the borough council said: "The money from the High Street Innovation Fund is both timely and welcomed. The issue of empty high street shops is a national problem however this council and its partners are determined to tackle this problem locally and bring empty properties back into active use."

As a result of the Portas report, the government has pledged to create 12 "Portas Pilots" - towns and cities that would share a £1 million handout to test her recommendations.

Warrington is one of more than 150 towns bidding to be one of them and the trial areas are expected to be announced in May.

Other North West towns bidding to be pilots include Altrincham, Frodsham and Preston.

service skills are essential. Front-line staff are the first impression your customers will have. It is therefore vital that these staff, as well as being cheerful and courteous, are immaculately groomed and well presented. This helps to add an air of efficiency to the service offered and is far more reassuring to the clientele. There are three main pointers which if observed, mean that your company is giving excellent customer service.

Smile

"Service with a smile", may sound like a cliché, but it works. Your staff will be remembered all the more if, apart from being polite and helpful, they are cheerful and friendly. You may find that clients give you their custom purely because of this!

Be eager to please

If the customer's query is not a straightforward one; never make them feel that helping them is any trouble, you will not receive any credit for good service.

Use your initiative

You should be keen to maximize sales and in order to do this you should be constantly aware of opportunities to turn tentative queries into sales. In other words, seize the chance to promote your company wherever you can.

Finally, remember, the old adage

A celebration of dance

MORE than 200 dancers from across Warrington took part in SHINE, a two day celebration of local dance at the Pyramid Arts Centre.

Performers were aged from four to 70+ and contemporary, street, tap, jazz, zumba, freestyle and disco dancing were all on the menu.

The running theme throughout the event was glory with the Olympics and the Queen's Jubilee featuring heavily in the original pieces devised by the groups taking part.

They were: Velocity, Lysander High School, Urban Footsteps Youth Dance Company, Mobata, Kate Simmons Dance, Fusion, Fused and Wolfprint from Warrington Wolves Foundation' GRACE, a new over 50s dance group, Northern Starr, Pyramid Street Dance, Gulliver's Dance School, Sara's Zumba at Pyramid and Warrington Collegiate.

Around 300 people went to see SHINE over two days which was organised entirely by volunteers led by Kerry Lloyd and produced by the borough council's arts development team based at Pyramid and Parr Hall.

The showcase was part of Youth Dance England's "U Dance" programme and all young performers received a certificate of recognition.

Anyone interested in dance in Warrington, can get in touch with Janey Moran in the council's arts team on 01925 444258 or email arts@warrington.gov.uk

Read-2-Me service in the home

PEOPLE who cannot get to a library or find it difficult to read a book because of ill health or disability can join Warrington Library's Read-2-Me service.

The service is offered on a long or short-term basis by the library, using volunteer readers.

Friendly volunteers who love reading themselves will choose books, stories or poems matched to the clients tastes and needs. They visit on a regular basis and read to the client for an hour or so.

The client can either read along - aloud or silently - or just sit back, relax and listen. And of course there is always time to just enjoy the company.

The Read-2-Me service has evolved from the similar Read to Relax sessions held in group settings in Warrington libraries.

Both services provide opportunities for literary discussion and friendly chat.

Staff go the extra mile for Sport Relief

[Pictures: John Hopkins]

STAFF from Sainsbury's went the extra mile for Sports Relief with a family fun day and fancy dress football match at Warrington Town's Cantilever Park.

Employees took part in a sponsored walk followed by a fancy dress football match which ended with a penalty shoot out. All funds raised were donated to Sport Relief. Pictures show some of the fancy dress characters on display.

New manager in Town

WARRINGTON Town have unveiled their new management team of Shaun Reid and former player Lee Smith.

The pair have travelled the short distance down the road from nearby Prescot Cables.

Manager Reid holds a UEFA A coaching licence and has had spells coaching at Swindon Town and Plymouth Argyle.

During his professional playing career he played over 400 games at Rochdale, twice, Preston North End, Bury and Chester City. He has also scouted for Sunderland and Portsmouth and worked in football as an agent.

He is the younger brother of former England and Everton star

Peter Reid.

Smith had two spells as a player at Warrington Town and was a member of the team that won promotion from the North West Counties in 2001.

Welcoming the pair to Cantilever Park Chairman Gary Skentelbery said: "Shaun has ambitions of managing in the football league one day and we have ambitions to be there as a club."

"We realise it is not going to be an easy journey and will involve a lot of hard work for everyone connected with the club."

"We wish Shaun and Lee well and look forward to working with them."

Hair salons join forces

Two Warrington hair salons have joined forces with Daniel Anderson Hairdressing teaming up with 'Jakata Hair & Beauty'.

Danny and Jakata owner Adam Carter discussed the idea a few months ago and plans were made to bring the teams together. The plan is to build on the strengths of both businesses and ultimately offer the best customer experience possible.

Jakata was formed by Adam eight years ago, steadily building up a strong, diverse team. The salon has picked up numerous awards along the way. By the end of 2010 the Bridge Street premises had reached capacity and plans were drawn up to open a sister salon to be run by Paul Kemp.

'Paul Kemp Hairdressing' opened last July and is growing from strength to strength. The salons have a team of 25 staff between them and are now stronger than ever with the recent introduction of 'Daniel Anderson Hairdressing'.

Danny said: 'I've known Adam and Paul for years and we talked about combining the salons. We share the same passion for high end hairdressing whilst offering the best customer experience. Between the three of us we have the ultimate hairdressing teams in Warrington, I'm really excited to see what the future holds!'

Daniel is now located at Jakata on Bridge Street. Call 01925 242960 for more information.

Moving home this Summer?

Summer is the busiest season for moving home. If it is your first time selling your home the process can be a daunting experience. Our Property Team offer a efficient, reliable and friendly service to help your transaction flow as seamlessly and smoothly as possible helping to minimise this potentially stressful experience.

Our easy guide to a sale transaction will help give you an understanding of the conveyancing process:-

- The first step will be for us to make contact with all parties involved in your transaction e.g. estate agents, financial advisors and the buyer's solicitors.
- You will be asked to complete questionnaires in relation to the property replying to questions such as who owns the boundaries to the property, whether there have been any alterations to the property and what fittings and contents are to be included within the sale.
- We will then prepare the Contract documentation and send the same to the buyers solicitors.
- You will then be asked to reply to any further questions raised by the buyers solicitors.
- The next step will be for you to sign the necessary Contract documentation and discuss a date for completion, this will be the day which all parties will move.
- We will then exchange Contracts. Exchange of Contracts takes place between the sellers and buyers solicitors. Once Contracts are exchanged both the seller and buyer are legal bound to complete the sale.
- On the day of completion the sale is finalised and all monies are passed over. On completion we will pay off any mortgage or charges against the property together with fees payable to the estate agents.

- Throughout the process we will provide you with regulation update.
- Our aim to make your transaction flow as seamlessly and smoothly as possible.

Our Property Team also deals with residential sales and purchases, 28 day exchanges, Right to Buy, Shared Ownership/Staircasing and Remortgages/ Transfer of Equity.

Call, email or arrange a appointment with one of our experienced conveyancers Carla Savory or Stacey Finney today for a no obligation quotation: Tel: 01925 632267 Email: csavory@widdows.co.uk or sfinney@widdows.co.uk

The electric car for everyday use

THE Vauxhall Ampera, European Car of the Year 2012, will be the first electric vehicle suitable for everyday use.

This is GM's bold claim for a car which they say is not a hybrid and offers drivers all the benefits of electric driving without any of the range anxiety normally associated with electric vehicles.

Electricity powers the wheels of the Ampera at all times, with a 16kWh lithium-ion battery pack feeding an advanced 150PS electric drive unit, delivering between 25-50 miles of battery-powered electric drive and zero tailpipe emissions. What sets the car apart from other electric vehicles is its range extender, which boosts the car's range by up to 310 miles.

A small 1.4-litre petrol-fuelled engine/generator runs at optimum efficiency, generating enough electricity to power the electric motor (but not the wheels) and operates seamlessly as part of the Ampera's powertrain. The results are a total driving range of up to 360 miles - equivalent to 235.4mpg and combined tailpipe emissions of just 27g/km.

The car costs around £1 to fully charge. It's a four seater, has a top speed of 100mph and accelerates from 0-60mph in just 8.7 seconds. Prices start from £29,995, inclusive of the government's plug-in car grant

Financially yours

By David Watkinson

Claiming for your household expenses when working from home

The tax office will allow you to claim a proportion of your household expenses against your taxable income if you are employed and work from home.

For any expense to be deductible then it must be incurred "wholly, exclusively and necessarily in the performance of the duties of the employment". There are two main conditions to be fulfilled before you can make a claim.

Firstly, working from home must be a requirement of the job and not simply a matter of choice. Therefore, you would expect to see a clause in the contract or terms of employment specifying that a home office must be provided.

Secondly, there must be no non-business purpose to the expenditure. Unless this applies then it cannot fulfil the wholly and exclusively condition. However, the tax office does apply a "no-quibble" policy of accepting a claim of up to £3 per week without question subject only to the first condition being met. Claims above this amount should be supported by receipts.

The above applies to expenses incurred in working from home. However, there may in addition be a claim for the use of assets for your employment, such as desk, chair, bookshelves, computer, printer, desk lamp, etc. In the case of assets the wholly and exclusively rule does not apply, and the "Capital Allowances" available on these assets can be apportioned between private and business use, and the business element charged against taxable income.

The rules for claiming Capital Allowances are too complex for this article. However, if there are allowances of £200 available on a desk, and that desk is used for 5 hours a week for the purpose of your employment and 10 hours per week for private use, then £66 (one-third) can be claimed against taxable income. It should be noted that it is the proportion of use for employment against total use that is the allowable claim, not the use for employment against the total time for which the desk is available.

If you think that you have a possible

claim for Capital Allowances that you have not made, then the tax rules will allow you to go back three years.

WatkinsonBlack are pleased to advise on these and other matters. They have considerable experience in these and other matters, including providing a very cost-effective payroll bureau service. We also offer a very cost effective insurance against the cost of protecting yourself against these tax office fishing trips. If you want to arrange a no-obligation initial meeting on any taxation or accounting matter then please contact us. Please note that these ideas are intended to inform rather than advise and you should always obtain professional advice before taking any action.
